Trains have city steaming

Traffic complaints rising

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — City residents and officials are getting really steamed over blocked railroad crossings, and are taking action to try to get traffic flow back on track.

The Norfolk & Southern Railroad was issued 13 summonses for statute violations in the first 20 days of February, according to police records. The Southern Pacific and Burlington Northern railroads were also cited during that period.

While most of the summonses were issued in response to trains blocking a crossing longer than the legal maximum of 10 minutes, the railroads have also been cited for failure to maintain equipment. More than once, crossing gates have been down with no train in sight, according to complainants.

The number of complaints received and summonses issued by the police department has increased dramatically in the last two months. Chief Don Knight attributes the increase to a rise in public awareness of the issue, through City Council sessions and other public meetings.

"I think people have been made aware of the situation by the recent attention in council meetings," Knight said. "We're not doing anything differently. If we get a call from someone who wants to come down and sign a complaint, we track down the engine numbers and let them sign it."

Don Piedmont, director of public relations for the Norfolk & Southern in Roanoke, Va., said the railroad has not changed its manner of operations, either.

"I am not aware we are doing anything differently," he said. "We are experiencing a great deal of traffic, and I suspect this is a matter of accommodating heavy traffic."

"We don't like to block (automobile) traffic, and regret the inconvenience it causes. But at the same time, we have customers to accommodate," Piedmont said.

Two officers at the police station characterized the situation as "a mess." They said it often takes "a couple of hours" for railroad officials to respond to calls informing them that gates are down. Meanwhile, traffic lines lengthen or motorists drive

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Mayor Von Dee Cruse called 4th Ward Alderman Dan Partney's $1,000,000 lawsuit against him a "personal matter" and said it is no reason for him to oppose Partney's re-election in April. "I don't like (the suit), but it doesn't have anything to do with how (Partney) does his job as an alderman," Cruse said. "I guess it would be easy for me, along these lines, to give it to be against somebody, but I can't (say) that. I have to go by how (Partney) performs as a city official."

Partney has a pending suit against Cruse that alleges Cruse, for political reasons, set in motion a conspiracy that led to an investigation and, ultimately, charges filed against Partney for his alleged role in an alleged cheating incident on a 1985 police promotion exam. All charges in the case eventually were dropped.

But, while Cruse said he will not actively support Partney's opponent, Sandy Shaw, he said that is not a formal endorsement of Partney.

IP land may become school nature area.

By Dennis Grubbaugh
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A unique three-way partnership designed to convert a power company's substation property into a classroom nature area was to have been presented to the school board last night.

The plan, proposed by Illinois "Power Co., entails converting the East 23rd Street substation property behind Lake School into a several-acre expanse combining water ponds, foot trails and prairie area. The substation would remain as the core of the site, which would be bounded on the east by Maryville Road and on the west by the Anchorage Homes development.

Residences along Terminal Avenue lie just north of the affected area. The site would be laid out with a buffer to limit visibility from surrounding areas and encourage wildlife use, said William Badger, IP's area engineering supervisor.

Central to the plan is the input of the Illinois Department of Conservation, which says this site could be a pilot for similar programs in the state. The idea for the nature classroom dates back to September, Badger said, when both the power company and DOC off

Writer's Career Change Urge Requires Writing

I am a writer. Business is lousy. I am writing a book. It is very hard and very slow. I am writing ad copy for a car dealer at a time when car dealers all over the country are suffering. I am writing a column. It isn't doing all that great, either, as you can tell. I am getting desperate. I leave the typewriter and lie down, page through catalogs. I see an ad: "A tool no writer should be without."

"The world's most highly acclaimed creative writing computer program is now available," the ad says. "WritePro is being used successfully by beginners, intermediates and professionals in all 50 states and 32 countries."

It quotes one R.J. Donovan of Writers Digest as gushing, "You'll see immediate improvement... by the time Lesson 2 is over, you have a story with well-rounded characters, a believable plot, momentum and clichés."

No clichés? What about "well-rounded characters?" "WritePro" also shows how to master suspenseful beginnings, decide which point of view to use for maximum impact, when to use dialogue effectively. No more trial and error. No more writer's block.

I am tempted, but if this program is so easy and profitable, then why didn't the guy who wrote the program write a book? Also, it costs $79.95 and business, as I mentioned, isn't all that great.

Perhaps, I think, I should change careers. Not long ago, a couple of old friends dropped by. They said they'd moved to Phoenix and gone into the storm-window business.

I thought it was a joke. Storm windows in Phoenix? Right. And then you're going to sell deep freezes in Circle, Alaska.

Wrong, wrong, wrong, they said. These were super-duper, sun-proof, keep-the-heat-out storm windows. Phoenixians couldn't get enough of them.

I was happy for them. Imagine, living in the year-round sunshine. Lots of good Mexican food. Great golf courses. Plenty of cheap property to be purchased from failed savings and loans.

Well, there is a downside to everything. Perhaps, I think, lying on the couch, my friends have the right idea. I throw away the WritePro ad and reach for another catalog. "200 Ways to Succeed in a Business of Your Own."

Surely there is something I could do that didn't involve well-rounded characters.

Shrimp peddling, for example. The catalog says that for $29.50, I can find out about "the whale of a profit in shrimp peddling."

Apparently this involves buying a refrigerated truck, running down to the Gulf Coast, negotiating with a shrimp boat captain and then driving the shrimp back home and peddling them off the back of the truck to Midwesterners who will pay any price for shrimp.

This is $50 cheaper than WritePro but I don't like the smell of shrimp. I look for something else.

There is "Freelance Writing Business—Hemingway, Michener Starter Kit" at $69.50. "Best selling authors get all the publicity but, even if you're not famous, you can earn a solid living as a self-employed freelance writer. Glamorous? Well, maybe. But if you're smart, you'll go for the dough first."

Truly these are inspirational words. I imagine Hemingway, sitting at a table in a Paris attic, thinking, "To hell with 'A Farewell to Arms.' I'm going to go for the dough first."

Besides, Hemingway wouldn't have needed to write if he'd known about the dough available in "Parking Lot Striping and Maintenance Service" or "Self-Improvement Insight-Awareness Seminars" or "Sock Shop, the Secret to Success" or selling furniture made out of PVC plumbing pipe.

I think about striping parking lots and I think, nah. Too much like work. The real money is to be made in "Government Contracts."

"When you finish reading this business guide," the catalog says, "you will know how to acquire your own government contract."

It's $69.50 but I figure I can make that back many times over by buying a pair of pliers at the hardware store and selling them to the Pentagon for $600. All I have to do is write a letter. Unfortunately, that is beyond me.

Youth, 15, dies of gunshot wound

Granite City

Cannabis charge filed

A 15-year-old boy, son of a local policeman and grandson of a city alderman, was found dead of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound in his home on Sunday.

The body of Walter C. Milton III, of the 2300 block of Delmar Avenue, was discovered by his father, Patrolman Walter Milton Jr., at about 4 p.m. Sunday. He was lying on his back in his bedroom with a gunshot wound to his chest. The weapon used was the 9-mm service revolver normally used by his father, authorities said.

The youth was alone at the time of the shooting, police said.

A police department spokesman, Lt. Col. Ron Selph, said foul play has been ruled out.

Walter Milton Jr. is the police department's DARE officer, a role that calls for him to travel throughout the school system speaking on problems stemming from drug abuse. Selph said the DARE program will be suspended temporarily because of the student's death.

Granite City School Superintendent Gilbert Walmesley said the younger Milton was a popular student and a member of the school's sophomore football team. Counselors have been present at the school to assist despondent classmates, Walmesley said.

The boy's grandfather is Walter Milton Sr., an alderman in the 6th Ward.

Assistant Coroner Roger Smith pronounced the boy dead at the scene at 5 p.m. A coroner's inquest is pending.

Breach of police contracts alleged

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Two police sergeants have added a breach of contract lawsuit to the myriad of legal actions they have pending against Granite City and its Board of Fire and Police Commissioners.

Sgt. John Apperson and Dave Rosenberg filed a suit against the city in the Madison County Circuit Court on Friday, alleging the board breached their contracts by denying them hearings to appeal separate reprimands in September 1989.

Departmental rules at that time provided for a hearing to appeal any disciplinary action, but the board contended those rules were superseded by state law, which calls for a hearing only when the disciplinary action involves loss of money by an officer.

In response to a previous suit filed by the officers, Associate Judge Jan Fiss ruled in their favor in October 1990 and ordered the board to hold hearings. The board scheduled the hearings in December, but before they could be heard, the officers filed a suit seeking an injunction to prevent the board from holding the court-mandated hearings.

The suit for injunction, which is still pending, also claims commissioners Linda Irwin and Dewey Melton are prejudiced toward Chief of Police Don Knight and against the defendants and their lawyer, Melroy B. Hutnick of Belleville, that Irwin should be disqualified because she is a potential witness in the Apperson case; that Melton should be disqualified because of comments he made to the newspaper regarding Hutnick's handling of another case before the board; and that the entire board has no legal authority to call or hold any type of hearing in the case.

The suit for an injunction is still pending.

In the most recent suit, Apperson also alleged his contract was breached when the board failed to select him for promotion to lieutenant although he was at the top of the eligibility roster.

According to the suit, the board "in the course of Apperson's employment" established an "unwavering custom to promote in the order of rank from the eligibility roster" that was "openly and freely communicated to Apperson and relied on by Apperson."

But, according to the suit, when Apperson reached the top of the list for promotion to lieutenant, he was denied the promotion by the commissioners.

Each of the counts in the breach of contract suit asks for damages of in excess of $15,000. City Attorney Mark Goldenberg said, "Litigation is expensive and I wonder who is paying for it."

Asked about the most recent suit, Knight said, "What's new?" and declined further comment. Melton, spokesman for the board, said it had no comment.

Department rules forbid Rosenberg and Apperson from commenting to the press.

APPRECIATION SHOWN: The 1990 Tri-Cities Area United Way fund drive chairman, Jack Lee, left, accepts an award from Drew Karandjoff, the previous campaign chairman, for the first $1 million campaign. This fall's drive raised over a million dollars for area community service agencies.

GRANITE CITY — A federal grand jury indicted a former Granite City Steel executive Friday on six counts of extortion.

The indictment charges that John D. Cole, 48, of Granite City interceded with interstate commerce by means of extortion on six different occasions during 1987 and 1988. At that time, Cole was manager of the Real Transportation Services of the Granite City Division, National Steel Corp.

According to the indictment, Cole extorted a total of $15,500 from two different contractors. The names of the contractors were not released.

Norma Jones, a member of the public affairs section at the Granite City Division, said Cole is no longer employed there, but could make no other comment. She referred questions to Ken Leonard, assistant Granite City Steel manager, who did not return phone calls.

According to U.S. Attorney

Frederick Hess, the maximum penalty on conviction for each count would be 20 years imprisonment and a $250,000 fine.

Hess said the case was investigated by agents from the Federal Bureau of Investigation and has been assigned to Assistant U.S. Attorneys Norman R. Smith and Thomas E. Leggans.

Police dog missing; reward is offered

MADISON — Duke, the police department's dog, wandered away from his home in the 1600 block of Sixth Street around 5 p.m. Saturday and the department is offering a reward for his return.

Duke is a black and brown German shepherd. He is about 2 1/2 feet tall and weighs approximately 60 pounds.

According to a police spokesman, Duke is usually a friendly dog, but in the wrong hands he could be very dangerous.

"He's a professional dog, not a pet. Outside, lost and confused, he could be a real problem if there is no one around to call him off," the police officer said.

"So, if he is spotted, we ask that people call the department, 676-4300, rather than try to catch him."

Because of Duke's recent excellent record against drug dealers, the police department would not rule out the possibility Duke was kidnapped, but the spokesman said the police remain hopeful that is not the case.

THE EYE SURGERY CENTER

What Is Single Stitch Cataract Surgery?

Until now, all cataract surgery required a large incision into the eye to remove the cataract and implant a lens. Eight or more stitches were required to close the wound.

Recently, however, a new, soft silicone implant has been developed that can fit through a 4mm (about 1/8 in.) incision which can be closed with a single stitch.

The result is a quicker recovery of vision and immediate return to normal activities. This is now the ideal technique for the majority of cataract cases.

Youth gang is broken up

By Bob Slat
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A group of 10 youths, responsible for a number of terrorizing incidents in an area immediately north of Wilson Park, has been broken up by police.

Charges are expected to follow.

Detective Mike Murgic said Friday that 10 juveniles, ranging in age from 12 to 16 years, responsible for at least seven fires and additional acts of vandalism since Christmas — have been questioned by officers.

The juveniles admitted several incidents on Yale, Princeton, Colgate, Idaho and Indiana, Murgic said.

He said that while the boys were not all involved in every incident, there is a relationship between the youths and the acts.

Police Chief Don Knight characterized the group as "almost like a little gang."

Among the incidents linked to the youths are breaking picture windows, ringing door bells and running from the scene, harassing senior citizens, throwing ice balls at people and property, terrorizing younger children, setting yard and trash fires on Yale, Princeton, Colgate, Idaho and Indiana — sometimes with the use of accelerants — and in the case of one fire, throwing ammunition into an accelerant container.

All the boys were interviewed by Murgic on Thursday, and admissions of involvement in the incidents were obtained, Murgic said.

He intends to confer with the Madison County State's Attorney's Office and file petitions, resulting in numerous charges, against all the suspects.

The boys will also be required to attend the juvenile firestarter program headed by Captain Bob Davies of the Granite City Fire Department, Murgic said.

Flag etiquette book offered

Due to growing inquiries on how to display the American flag, U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, announced that his office will provide booklets free to constituents with questions on how to hang the flag.

"Since the beginning of the war with Iraq, my office has received hundreds of requests on how to display our flag," Costello said.

The booklet, titled "Our Flag," lists the many ways to appropriately display the American flag, including which kind of flag to display in inclement weather, how to hang the flag from a window or wall and how to carry a flag in a parade.

Constituents can obtain a copy of "Our Flag," from any of Costello's Illinois or Washington offices, or by calling 541-2122.

New arts council executive enthusiastic about future

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Maria Granberry wants to jump right into her new job and make things happen — just as soon as she finds a secretary.

The new executive director of the Madison County Arts Council was answering phones and shuffling through files last week after the office secretary found another job.

Granberry, 26, replaced John Peecher the first week of February. It's the first "real" job for the native St. Louisan.

"I feel so lucky to have gotten this job right off," Granberry said. "It's the type of work I wanted and in the geographic area I want to stay in."

Granberry was living with her parents, Donald and Nada Granberry, in St. Louis but moved to Glen Carbon a few weeks ago. She was pleasantly surprised by the area.

The historical neighborhoods are so beautiful," Granberry said. "And there's so much going on."

Granberry said she has always wanted to work in arts, a love partly developed through dance lessons which began at age six.

Granberry graduated from John Burroughs School in Ladue in 1982. She did her undergraduate work at Northwestern University in Chicago where she majored in theater. She completed a dual program at Southern Methodist University in Dallas last year, earning her master's degrees in art and business administration.

Granberry said one of her foremost goals will be to familiarize the public with the arts council.

"People are always asking me what (the council) does," Granberry said. "Instead I want them to ask 'What is (the council) doing now' or 'What will (the council) be doing?'"

The arts council is a non-profit corporation in its 10th year of arts and education services in Madison County. It serves as an umbrella for 29 art-related programs, including: the Cahokia Mounds Historic Site, Gateway East Artist Guild, Arts League Players Inc., the Old Six Mile Museum, Summerstage, and the Happy Strings Tambourines.

The council also sponsors classroom arts performances and appearances by such historical characters as Abraham Lincoln and Harriet Tubman.

In addition to Granberry, four officers and a board of directors from throughout the county guide the council. It operates from an office above the Illinois Power Co. in Edwardsville, the space donated by Barton Contracting.

Granberry will also serve on a number of tourism councils and committees as an arts spokesman.

"The arts are a great source of tourism," Granberry said. "Somehow artists get pushed under the rug."

Most of the council funding comes from area businesses and private individuals. Granberry said part of her work involves finding more of these sponsors — a difficult task in tough economic times.

"People think that arts are something over the top of what's necessary," Granberry said. "It's my job to show them that it's very necessary."

Granberry was delighted by what she saw last week while visiting a "Kids and Art" workshop sponsored by the council.

For a small fee, children are treated to eight workshops, one held each month, at their local library. The programs are currently under way in Collinsville, Edwardsville, Glen Carbon, Granite City and Troy.

Granberry is gearing up for the Student Art Exhibit to be held in late March or early April. She is also looking forward to creating new programs.

But for right now she's reveling in her new position and getting to know the area and the people in it.

Conductor discovers high notes in experience

By Carolyn Marty
Staff writer

Andre Smith is an American artist on the move who has found the road to becoming a conductor has many high notes.

As an assistant conductor for the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, Smith, 28, recently returned from a week-long tour with the symphony. The previous week, he had visited a public high school attempting to demystify the works of such composers as Mozart and Brahms.

Now, his attention is focused on the 106 students who will follow his direction during an upcoming youth concert. Smith will conduct the St. Louis Symphony Youth Orchestra at 3 p.m. Sunday, March 3 at Powell Hall.

The Suburban Journals are a sponsor for the concert. The youth orchestra is sponsored by the Women's Association of the St. Louis Symphony Society. Conducting the group of young St. Louis musicians is something Smith finds pleasurable.

"This experience is unique from other youth orchestras I've worked with," Smith said. "Here, students work closely with other principal players and with professionals from their sections before all coming together. It improves the general caliber of the performance. All in all, it's a pleasant experience."

Sunday's program will include Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto in D major and his Symphony No. 4, "Sapphire," a selection from composer George Gershwin, a professor both at Washington Community College at Forest Park.

According to Smith, Tchaikovsky's music is extremely difficult for high school students. "But they (youth orchestra members) are doing an excellent job with a very difficult program," he said. "It's been a tradition here to push the kids to their limit so they will get better."

Smith said helping the young musicians discover the extent of their ability is rewarding.

"It's exciting and scary because you never know how the kids will react—positively or a little discouraging," he said. "But only by experiencing the difficult will they know what their actual limits are."

Smith began his duties with the symphony in January as a participant in the Affiliate Artists Conductors Program, a nationwide program designed to provide exceptionally talented African-trained conductors with the experience needed to become tomorrow's masterful music directors.

"I feel like the new kid on the block," Smith said referring to his affiliation with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. "To be around a professional orchestra of this caliber is different than being in the conservatory. I have an enormous amount to learn."

Smith, who said his ultimate goal is to become the ultimate of a major American orchestra, said he didn't have any formal music lessons until he was in high school.

Originally from Durham, N.C., he sang in the church choir from an early age and learned to play the piano by ear. In high school, he joined the band as a trombonist and studied the instrument through college.

Smith received an advanced certificate in orchestral conducting from the Juilliard School of Music, a diploma from the Curtis Institute of Music, a master's degree in music from Yale University, and a bachelor's degree in music from the University of Miami. His teachers have included Otto Wenzel Mueller and Arthur Weisburg.

Smith has served as assistant conductor of the Yale Contemporary Ensemble and the Yale Philharmonia. He has been a guest conductor of the Savannah Symphony Orchestra, Concerto Soloists of Philadelphia and the Newark Youth Symphony. He also served as a mentor and conductor of gifted children at the Harlem School of the Arts.

The musician said a conductor's most important job is to convey a composer's intent to an audience. Creating excitement with the music and inspiration for the musicians means becoming as intimate as possible with the music, he said.

Smith conducts many of the scores from memory, as he will do during the youth symphony performance. He said he can do this only when he knows the music through and through.

"As a young conductor, I have to study and rehearse the music," he said. "If I don't feel like I've lived with it (music), I won't do it without the score."

In addition to conducting both the youth orchestra and the symphony, Smith is involved in outreach and educational activities during his two-year stay in St. Louis. He will continue to visit schools, looking for ways that the symphony orchestra can be more accessible to the community, and encouraging youngsters to become involved with the youth orchestra.

"It's not just music of the upper echelon," Smith said. "We're led to believe that every professional musician is a child prodigy, but that isn't the case."

Smith said he tells youngsters if they don't have formal training by college it might take them a little longer to attain their goal, like he did. But if they want it, they should go for it.

"Whatever you want to attain, you can make it happen."

Smith said the next two years with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will help him in his growth.

Orchestra is unique experience

By Jim Haverstick
Staff writer

Playing with the St. Louis Symphony Youth Orchestra is the chance of a lifetime only a handful of young local musicians will ever grasp.

All of the young musician who play with the symphony will walk away from the experience with a few select pieces of music etched forever in their minds.

Yet playing with the symphony yields more than a knowledge of notes and stanzas. Each musician will leave with a very personal perception of the experience, also.

Michele Sawyer, 16, of Fallon has developed a greater appreciation for classical music while playing the flute with the Youth Orchestra, she said.

"I am playing things that I normally wouldn't listen to on the radio," she said. "Now I can tell how these pieces are constructed."

For the Sunday, March 3 concert, the musicians have been learning Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto in D major, his Symphony No. 4, and "Sapphire," a selection from composer George Gershwin, a professor both at Washington University and St. Louis Community College at Forest Park.

The group previously performed Dec. 2 to mark the Youth Symphony's 20th anniversary.

"I can appreciate music more," Michele said of rehearsal and playing the pieces. "I was surprised how difficult and complex it all really is."

Tom Hsieh, 15, of Collinsville plays the cello with the orchestra and feels playing classical music is just one of the challenges of being part of the orchestra.

If you like showing off your scars, our new laser gallbladder surgery is not for you.

To some people, surgery scars are like a badge of honor. If this describes you, read no further. If discretion is more your style, and you are one of more than 600,000 people in the United States who will undergo gallbladder surgery this year, then we can help. Through a technique known as laser laparoscopic cholecystectomy, our surgeons remove the gallbladder and its stones through a tiny incision in the abdomen. The good news is that your hospital stay is reduced to only a day or so, you can return to work in about a week instead of a month, costs are reduced, and pain is greatly diminished. The bad news is that you won't have a great scar to show off. To find out more about this procedure, call James F. Cooper, M.D., Medical Director.

Fairmount named in lawsuits

EDWARDSVILLE — The Fairmount Park Race Track in Collinsville has been named in two lawsuits filed in the Madison County Circuit Court.

The first suit was filed Feb. 14 by the Illinois Horsemen's Benevolent Association, which represents horse owners and trainers.

Ogden-Fairmount Inc., Ogden-Fairmount Jockey Club and the Illinois Racing Board are all named as defendants.

The suit seeks to have more than $304,944 put into an interest-bearing escrow account pending determination of the case. The suit claims that the money was wrongfully withheld from purse payments by the race track.

The suit alleges that the race track began wrongfully withholding purse money from the plaintiffs on July 1, 1990.

The plaintiffs were to have received as purse money the half of 3 1/2 percent of the amount wagered each day on multiple-wager races and one-half of 8 percent of the amount wagered each day on trifecta races.

The amount said to be wrongfully withheld is expected to escalate when the next thoroughbred horse racing meet begins April 12, the suit said.

The suit claims that the withholding violates both a three-year contract between the association and the race track entered into in October 1988 as well as the revised Horse Racing Act of 1987.

In the second suit, filed Friday, a St. Louis man seeks more than $15,000 in damages for injuries he allegedly sustained at the race track.

Michael Minor claims that on Feb. 25, 1989, he slipped on several pieces of paper, covered with an unknown liquid, while he was at the race track.

Minor alleges injuries to his shoulder, arm, elbow, back and neck and that he also suffered whiplash, muscle spasms, swelling, tenderness, nausea and loss of sleep.

According to the suit, Minor spent more than $2,000 for medical care for his injuries and will require additional treatment.

The suit claims that the race track was negligent in failing to repair and maintain pavement located within the park.

Fighting Cancer

Below the Belt

Prostate cancer is the second most common cancer in males over 50. According to the American Cancer Society, over 105,000 new prostate cancers will be diagnosed and about 30,000 men will die of the disease this year. Early detection and treatment are crucial to "fighting cancer below the belt."

As a free community service, the physicians of Belleville Medicine, in cooperation with Memorial and St. Elizabeth's Hospitals, are pleased to offer a free prostate cancer educational seminar and a two part cancer screening program.

Prior to the education program, free PSA testing will be conducted at Memorial, by appointment only, on Monday, March 18, between 5 and 6:45 p.m. for males 50 and over. A tube of blood must be drawn. A limited number of appointments can be scheduled on a first-come, first-served basis by calling 233-7750, extension 5649.

A PSA test and a standard rectal exam by a qualified physician are believed to be the optimal prostate cancer detection method. Therefore, participants are strongly encouraged to take advantage of both the free PSA test and rectal exam.

Eric Pomeroy on USS America

Navy Airman Eric D. Pomeroy, son of Kip and Jeneal Pomeroy of Granite City, is assigned to the USS America in support of Operation Desert Storm.

His specialty is jet aircraft maintenance and he works on the flight deck of the carrier. The Navy airman, 20, completed basic training at the Great Lakes (Ill.) Recruit Training Center, followed by apprentice training.

While he was working a night operation on the darkened flight deck several weeks ago, a track mechanism ran over one of Pomeroy's hands and broke one or two of his fingers, his father said. "He's OK now," the father said.

Pomeroy's parents have received a tape and a letter from their son. Although mail going to the Persian Gulf region sometimes takes 16 to 18 days, the last letter coming this way arrived within three days.

Pomeroy is a 1989 graduate of Granite City High School. His address is: Airman App. Eric D. Pomeroy, USS America CV-66, Air Dept. V1 Div., FPO New York 09531-2790.

Fraud suit filed on gas-saver scheme

The attorney general of Illinois is trying to pull the plug on an alleged gas-saving additive. Attorney General Roland W. Burris has filed a consumer fraud lawsuit in Cook County Circuit Court against a Georgia businessman and his company, Auto Ecology, alleging deceptive advertising and the use of an illegal pyramid scheme.

Burris said Virgil Holman of Columbus, Ga., and Auto Ecology claimed 18 benefits when small green pellets were added to fuel tanks, including increased gasoline mileage, better engine performance and cleaning of the vehicle's entire fuel and combustion system.

Burris charged the product doesn't contain large enough concentrations of any known octane enhancers, detergents or other modifiers to improve auto performance and may actually harm vehicles.

The lawsuit alleges Holman and his company offered bonuses and incentives, in order to sign up distributors in Illinois for the "green beans."

The lawsuit seeks a $50,000 fine and an order to freeze the company's assets, with seizure of all profits and restitution of funds to consumers.

It also asks for an emergency restraining order barring the company from doing business in Illinois.

Holman could not be reached for comment.

County health department idea again being promoted

The League of Women Voters of the Edwardsville area is reviving a drive for a county health department, prompted by a recent meningitis case in Edwardsville.

But a Madison County Board member says the county does not need another layer of bureaucracy. The County Board defeated a resolution to create a health department in 1988. It is the largest Illinois county without a health department.

Many services a health department would provide are handled by state and local non-profit agencies.

In the last two weeks, an Edwardsville High School student was treated for a type of meningitis that affects the upper spinal cord.

Grace Madison of the League said a health agency would have ensured that people who might have been exposed to the highly contagious disease would have received rifampin, an antibiotic that prevents meningitis.

Instead, the school district sent notes home with high school students warning of the possible dangers of meningitis.

"The only thing the notes said was that they should see their private physicians," Madison said. "The working poor often won't go to a doctor if someone has flu-like symptoms, because they can't afford it."

The same problem surfaced in 1990, when the lack of a county department hindered efforts to vaccinate Livingston residents after three cases of meningitis were reported, said John Pitzer of the Illinois Department of Public Health's Edwardsville office.

"If we would have had a health department in Madison County, we would have been able to give the vaccinations much more quickly," he said.

Department officials delayed the vaccinations several days while waiting for nurses to arrive from Springfield and Chicago, Pitzer said. And, Madison said, "These services don't cover all the rural parts of the county now."

A department also could offer immunizations for small children and pre-natal care, she said. It could be created by a County Board resolution or through a referendum.

Robert Stille, Edwardsville, chairman of the County Board Health Institutions Committee, said he opposes a department because other agencies already provide most of the services.

"I don't think we need another layer of bureaucracy when most of the services already are available," Stille said. "It would cost us $1 million a year, to run a first-class department."

"People don't want to vote for new taxes," Madison said. "We would have needed a major education program to show there wouldn't be new taxes."

The county may charge a maximum property tax of 2.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation for a health department. At the same time, it would abolish its tuberculosis clinic property tax and transfer clinic services to the health department.

The clinic's tax rate is 1.59 cents; the maximum allowed is 7.5 cents.

The owner of a $60,000 house assessed at $20,000 would pay a maximum of $5 a year to support a county health department, proponents say. That same property owner now pays $3.18 for the TB clinic. Almost all of the clinic's $277,192 budget comes from the property tax.

The county would get at least $80,000 from the state for various services if it created a health department, Pitzer said.

Mayor

The present City Council, Cruse said, has proven its ability to work together and "I see no reason to try to change the makeup of the City Council at this time."

Asked if he supported the reelection of Street Superintendent Mac Warfield, twice Cruse's bitter opponent in mayoral races and a man whom Cruse once asked to resign for the good of the city, Cruse said, "My position is the position of street superintendent should be appointed, rather than elected, has not changed."

"But, as far from that, Mac has been very easy to work with and I have no problem supporting him."

cialists began talking about a mutual project.

DVC has been interested in expanding its Kids for Conservation Program, Badger said, and such a project would be approached by IP, he said.

According to the planning proposal given to the board last night, outdoor classrooms provide teaching alternatives that are otherwise unavailable.

The outdoor classrooms would provide a variety of natural habitats such as native prairie, forestry plantings, experimental garden plots and special wildlife plantings, all within easy access of schools.

Preliminary discussion with several science teachers showed wide interest in the program, said Badger. Schools throughout the district, not just Lake, would be a part of the development if the school board agrees to the plan.

"Lake just happens to be there, making it all the more advantageous," Badger said.

The area immediately adjacent to Lake would probably be used for demonstration plots, Badger said.

IP intends to keep the substation in use, but it will remain as it is now, surrounded by a high fence. Additionally, natural growth around the station will further limit its visibility, Badger said.

Although Illinois Power will be responsible for the initial conversion of the property, it is hoped that the district will be able to assume the eventual maintenance, at little cost to taxpayers, said Terry Kohler, Illinois Power's Granite City area manager.

Volunteers would be sought to help develop the site, using, among other things, Illinois Power workers and equipment.

Kohler said grant money could help finance the cost, including a literacy-related task that could be applied for through the State Board of Education.

Because so much of the project would be maintained by students, little cost is anticipated overall, Kohler said.

around the gates.

"The situation has the potential to create havoc for city emergency services' response as well, according to Chief Jerry Wallace.

He said that, while the department has not been hindered in response to an emergency lately, the potential for slower response time is itself a problem.

"The problem is, it is difficult to assume the crossings are not blocked. If you assume they are open, and they are blocked, it increases response time substantially," he said.

"It makes a substantial difference in the type of situation you are faced with when you arrive," Wallace said.

"What may have been a one-room fire in a response time of three to five minutes becomes an entire structure involved in 10 to 12 minutes."

Wallace related an incident from several years ago when a truck caught fire on West Ponton Road between the Namekoi tracks and the tracks that run parallel to Missouri Avenue.

Wallace said trains on both sets of tracks prevented fire trucks' access to the vehicle, which was subsequently totally consumed by flames.

Sentenced to 100 years for sex crimes

EDWARDSVILLE — A Troy man who pleaded guilty to sexual offenses against a boy and girl faces a 100-year prison term.

Mark Mosby, 22, a Coast Guardsman, earlier pleaded guilty to five counts of aggravated criminal sexual assault and one count of aggravated criminal sexual abuse against the boy in February 1989, and one count of aggravated criminal sexual abuse against the girl in the summer of 1988.

The boy was 12 and the girl was 10 at the time of the offenses.

Associate Judge J. Lawrence Keshner sentenced Mosby to serve consecutive 20-year terms on each of the five assault counts.

Mosby also was ordered to serve concurrent three-year prison sentences on the abuse counts.

It was estimated that Mosby will not be eligible to obtain parole from prison for almost 50 years.

Keshner said the law requires consecutive sentences in the assaults. Mosby could have been sentenced to a total of 150 years in prison.

Keshner called the crimes "appalling and almost sickening."

The judge said Mosby is "an individual who is definitely cruel and self-centered."

Mosby pleaded guilty to fondling the girl and engaging in acts of oral and anal sex with the boy.

"I do feel like the scum of the earth," Mosby told Keshner before the sentencing.

"I deserve a lot of time."

Mosby said he is sorry for the victims, their families and his own family and commented that he needs help.

Keshner said he would recommend that Mosby receive counseling while he is serving in prison.

"Justice was done," said Madison County Assistant State's Attorney Richard Rybak, the prosecutor, who had recommended a 100-year term to the judge.

"In some ways, the offenses are as bad or worse than murder," he said, "in their effects on victims and the community at large."

Rybak said.

One of Mosby's attorneys, Gerald Bassett, said Mosby was suffering from emotional problems that were associated with difficulties in his marriage.

Bassett urged leniency and treatment for Mosby.

However, Keshner ruled that Mosby was not mentally ill when the offenses occurred.

Court psychologist Lawrence Talliana testified that Mosby suffers an emotional disorder but is not mentally ill as defined by the criminal code.

Keshner said he would set a hearing later on Mosby's motion to withdraw his guilty pleas. The motion was filed before the sentencing.

In the motion, Mosby said he entered the pleas in the belief that he would be sentenced to 18 years in prison.

State's Attorney William Haine offered an 18-year sentence in plea bargaining, Mosby claimed.

Haine later denied such an offer was made or accepted.

Regional win just like 'old Trojans'

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

DUPO — For Al Collins, winning the Dupo Regional on Friday was a shot in the arm, both for the Trojan basketball program in general and himself in particular.

For the last six years, Madison has lived in the shadow of the Venice basketball program. Since the Trojans' last regional championship in 1985 — when they also went to state — the Red Devils have won three regionals and one state title.

But the Trojans have regained control of the spotlight. A 73-69 win over Venice on Dec. 18 was their first win over their arch-rival in seven years, then Friday's 72-61 triumph made it seem almost like the old days.

Collins thought his team had it in them all along.

"These guys have worked together three years for this," he said. "Our fans expected instant success. But it took us some time. We have a few loyal fans, but tonight everyone is on our side."

Collins, like predecessors Rodney Watson and Rich Essington, felt the pressure to duplicate Graham's success. Heading into Tuesday's sectional game in Vandalia against Raymond Lincolnwood, he certainly had that chance. With five of the top six Class A teams in the state losing

Al Collins
... breakthrough win

Friday, the field is wide open for anyone.

"Who knows what will happen (this) week?" said Collins, in his third year in charge of the Trojan program. "That's why we have to enjoy this right now. I wish we could come back and play immediately."

Collins was referring to eligibility problems which have plagued the Trojans. All students are checked weekly, and Madison more often than not has had at least one player unavailable every week. But the Trojans were at full strength for the regional, and it paid off as they beat Venice handily.

"I always thought we could play with anybody," said Collins. "People look at our record and see we lost seven games. You're going to lose seven games playing schedule like we play. Most of those losses were to teams I wasn't ashamed to lose to. And we played well in those games."

"The people who make up the rankings look at records. But we just played and didn't worry about the record."

Madison's losses have come to Galesburg, Cahokia, Carbondale, Cairo, Edwardsville, Waterloo, Gibault and Teutopolis. Only two of the losses were at home (to Class AA teams Cahokia and Edwardsville); three others were on neutral courts and the other two losses were by a total of three points on the home courts of solid Class A programs (Gibault and Teutopolis).

On the other hand, the Trojans handed Venice two of its five losses. They also have beaten seven Class AA teams (Alton, East St. Louis, Edwardsville, Cahokia, Jacksonville, Belleville West and Belleville East) and own road victories at Okawville and Mator Dei, plus two wins over Lebanon.

The Madison-Venice rivalry remains intense, yet friendly.

FRIENDLY ENCOUNTER: Andre Mays of the Trojans drives to the basket past his good friend Erwin Claggett of the Red Devils during Friday's regional championship game in Dupo.

Lott getting hot at right time

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

MADISON — Ron Lott is getting hot at the right time.

For the better part of the season, Andre Mays carried the Trojans offensively, but no one was more instrumental in giving Madison its first regional championship in six years.

The junior guard exploded for 10 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter last Friday as the Trojans finally ended their lengthy drought against rival Venice with a 72-61 victory in the Dupo Regional finals. Lott also scored 18 points in a semifinal win over Lebanon.

For his efforts, Lott has been named the East Side Publications Journal Athlete of the Week. "Beating Venice was our goal," Lott said. "We knew beating them would leave us as the best team in the field. That game proved just how strong our team can be. (Venice) felt we cheated them when we won at our place in our first meeting, so they thought they'd blow us out on a neutral floor."

"They were doing a lot of bragging during the game, but we concentrated on playing defense," Lott said. "We had the difference when the game was on the line. He has established himself as an offensive weapon after playing in the shadow of Mays and Antonio Smith.

"Ron suffered through a rollercoaster start," Madison coach Al Collins said. "The big reason was he lost confidence in his jump shot. He just quit shooting and started passing the ball off, but once the opposition started double-teaming Andre, Lott had to take charge."

"It was just a case of regaining my touch," he said. "I lacked confidence on the shot, so I became an assist man. But the shot started coming back at the Collinsville tournament. I just felt comfortable releasing it."

Lott still feels there's some area's-of-his-game that could get better.

"Andre motivated me to be a better player," he said. "I didn't work very hard during the summer to prepare myself for this season, but I've been lucky for the most part. The key was developing my game in practice."

Other candidates considered for Athlete of the Week were: Raquel Ransom of the East St. Louis Lincoln girls basketball team, London Coney of the Cahokia basketball team and Joe Ward of the Cahokia wrestling team.

(Each week one varsity athlete from Granite City, Madison, Venice, Cahokia, Dupo, East St. Louis or Lincoln high schools is selected by the Journal sports staff as the East Side Publications Journal Athlete of the Week. Selected athletes are eligible for consideration as the Journal Athlete of the Month.)

Ron Lott

... taking charge

"This is for bragging rights," said Collins. "We're all the same people. You're talking about brothers and sisters and cousins going against each other. All the kids are super. I feel badly for Erwin (Claggett) and Marcus (Franklin), because those are kids who played for me (at Madison Middle School). I wish I had some of their players so they could go on and play with us."

state with us because that's what we're planning to do."

"Erwin is a deep, special friend," said Antonio Smith. "We wish him all the luck in the world at St. Louis University. This one meant a lot to us (See MADISON, Page 88) because all of our guys and all of their guys have played together since grade school. We just got tired of losing to them all the time."

Mayes didn't get going until the second quarter Friday. He was playing a little too tight early on. It showed during the pregame introductions when he showed little emotion.

"I was looking forward to the game all day, but I just got real anxious when I hit the floor," he said.

"I could tell Andre wasn't ready to play," said Collins. "He gets shaky like that. But I told him there are about eight other guys who can pick up the slack. He just needs to play his game and things will take care of themselves. He doesn't have to do it all, even though he's our leading scorer."

Junior guard Ron Lott really picked up the slack with 19 points — 10 in the fourth quarter. He also tried to keep everyone from celebrating too early.

"We did that against Teutopolis and it cost us," said Lott of an 85-84 loss Feb. 15. "We had a good lead, but we had to keep playing hard defense and not let them back in the game."

"We had to play good inside defense to keep Franklin and (Ivan) Johnson from hurting us on the boards," Smith said. "It feels good. This is like the old Trojans."

The old Trojans made five trips to state in nine years, including championships in 1977 and 1981. The new Trojans are thinking similar thoughts.

Geraniums applauded for their bright, versatile color

By Robert J. Dingwall
Correspondent

The showy, bright flowers of geraniums make these plants a favorite for color in the garden. Geraniums may be used in a variety of ways, such as for bedding, planters, and hanging containers. They offer an array of flower colors and plant types, such as the zonal and ivy geraniums which are so popular for hanging baskets.

Geraniums are treated as annuals. Most of those grown by commercial growers are started from seed although some are propagated by cuttings. Seed-grown stock tends to do better in fall than cutting-grown stock and will flower until heavy frost kills them.

Geranium seed is usually started in early January for plants that begin to flower in three to four months. Germination is somewhat erratic and will take up to 21 days in some cases. A temperature of 70 degrees is required for germination. Plants should not be set outdoors until night temperatures are above 50 degrees.

Geraniums like strong light and grow best in rich, moist, well-drained soil that is high in organic matter.

Once plants are outdoors, watering is best done early in the morning. If that is not possible, water no later than early afternoon so that foliage will be dry by nightfall. Foliage that is wet at night is a prime target for disease organisms such as bacterial leaf spot. Last year, because of the wet spring, many geraniums suffered from bacterial disease. To help prevent this, consider plants' later size when spacing them, and place them far enough apart to allow for good air circulation once they begin maturing.

If geraniums are planted in semishade, flowering will be sparse. A fertilizer with too much nitrogen fertilizer also will cause poor flowering because energy will be directed into producing heavy foliage instead.

Much lighter after plants are set out; this helps prevent fungal spores from splashing from the soil onto the foliage.

Fungal disease usually is the culprit when spots appear on foliage. Generally, these spots start out looking like water-soaked areas and then turn brown. Remove infected foliage as soon as spots appear and do not add to compost.

Old flowers on geranium plants should be removed at regular intervals.

Foliage should be sprayed at intervals with a good fungicide such as Kocide or Bordeaux mixture following label directions. This is important during rainy periods. If you suspect bacterial leaf spot, disinfect garden tools with liquid bleach both before and after working with geraniums.

Insects such as aphids and white fly can be factors in spreading disease as well as weakening plants so control measures should be taken before they can become widespread. White fly is often spread from the greenhouse on plants offered for sale so a close examination is recommended at the time of purchase. If present, keep plants isolated until the white fly is controlled.

Stems that turn black at the soil line have been infected by bacterial stem rot. It is wise to remove the whole plant and destroy it. Treat the soil in the place where the plant had been growing with a good fungicide before replanting.

Frozen pipes can spell major problems

By Al Schneider
My Tinker
Central Hardware

Every time the weather turns bitter cold, I receive calls from frantic homeowners whose pipes have frozen or burst. Although plumbing in homes should be planned and installed so that it cannot freeze, poor insulation in only one spot can cause thousands of dollars in damage and big headaches for homeowners.

Look around your home now, before problems occur, to see if there are potential trouble spots.

Pipes freeze when they are routed through unheated areas, such as crawl spaces, attics and cold rooms. Freezing occurs in vacant homes, and in occupied homes if there are trouble spots and the weather turns frigid, or at night when there is little or no flow of water. Pipes with flowing water rarely freeze.

Pipes running through outside walls should have insulation installed between the pipe and any outside sheathing, not just between the pipe and the inside wall.

If you have pipes that run through a cold basement, garage or attic, I suggest using a self-adhesive foam that comes in rolls with either aluminum facing or long foam sleeves. Because the sleeves are slit down the middle, they can be popped easily onto pipes. Once in place, the slits should be sealed securely with tape.

Insulation only conserves heat. If there is no heat inside the pipe, then freezing is a possibility. Pipes with no heat can be wrapped with insulated heating cable equipped with automatic thermostat controls that operate as the temperature drops. The heating cables are looped around the pipe and then covered with fiberglass insulation. The insulation keeps the heat in and lessens energy consumption.

Protecting pipes that are enclosed in outside walls is another challenge. There are two ways to try to prevent freezing. One of them is to blow insulation into the wall. With this method you cannot be sure that the insulation will settle between the pipe and the outside sheathing.

The other way is to cut a small rectangular opening in the wall to the room, raising the temperature above freezing. Although you will lose some heat from the room, the louvers can be kept closed in all but very cold weather.

For poorly located pipes that continue to freeze, rerouting may be the only cure. Until the change can be made, you may want to leave the water slowly trickling out of the faucet on very cold days. Flowing water is much less likely to freeze.

If you have questions about insulating pipes this winter, call me at Central Hardware's Mr. Tinker Hotline, 946-3000.

Kemper Center First facility in U.S. for home gardening

By Lois Kendall
Staff writer

An innovative addition to the Missouri Botanical Garden will touch a large segment of the St. Louis population, namely home gardeners.

The William T. Kemper Center for Home Gardening, scheduled to open in June, will teach the practical aspects of gardening through hands-on activities, exhibits and reference information.

"This is the one and only home gardening center of its type in the U.S. — there's nothing close to it," said Douglas Arnold, public relations manager for the garden.

"The garden is such a real, living, breathing place, with so much going on," Arnold said. "And this will be one of the most active elements of the garden. You can come here to learn, experience and even be entertained. It's an important part of taking the garden home with you."

The focal point of the Kemper Center is a 10,000-square-foot split-level residential-style pavilion. The sleekly modern building was designed by the St. Louis architectural firm of Louis R. Saur & Associates Inc. and Environmental Planning & Design of Pittsburgh.

The center features interior redwood construction, cathedral ceilings and skylights. Glass panels cover much of the wall and ceiling space, giving it an open, airy feeling and accommodating the greenhouse and indoor gardening and flower display areas.

The facility includes a large living room area complete with a working fireplace surrounded by overstuffed chairs, a demonstration kitchen where staff members will cook the fruits of the exterior gardens, and a classroom and lecture hall for large programs. There also will be a library of garden reference information, a "plant doctor" clinic, patios, greenhouses and an atrium.

The pavilion will be equipped with extensive audio-visual equipment, stage lighting capability and computers to aid in garden design and soil analysis.

Outside, about 20 display gardens will be developed on the 9½ acres surrounding the pavilion. These residential-scale display gardens will include a shade garden, city garden, butterfly garden, small fruits garden, children's garden, and gardens for attracting birds and many others.

"Steve Cline, staff horticulturist and manager of the center, said its design was in the original

"This is the one and only home gardening center of its type in the U.S. — there's nothing close to it."
—Douglas Arnold

nal master plan drawn up by Peter Raven when he took over as director of the garden in the early 1970s.

"The bottom line of this facility is to cater to the individual home gardener," Cline said. "What we do is not a mystery — it's just a process of selecting the right materials and methods. We will offer one-on-one interaction with the public, giving them answers to their questions and offering written information for them to take home."

Construction of the home gardening center began early in 1990. It will be completed for opening day — June 8 for garden members, June 9 for non-members at the outdoor gardens will be developed over the next couple of years, Cline said.

The center is being developed through a five-year $18.7 million capital improvement campaign. It was named in honor of a gift of $1.25 million from the William T. Kemper Foundation.

The foundation was established by William T. Kemper Jr., a banker who died June 8, 1989. Kemper left the bulk of his estate to create a charitable foundation of about $125 million, which is administered by Commerce Bank and the Kemper family.

The Kemper Center is the last construction project of the $18 million campaign for the garden. The other major construction components have included renovation of the Climatron tropical display conservatory, construction of a Temperate House to replace the Mediterranean House, construction of an interpretive center on tropical deforestation and replacement of 10 production greenhouses built in 1912.

Cline calls the new facility "a tremendous opportunity for myself and for the city."

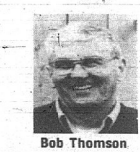

"It's a real challenge to develop because there's no model for it — it's one of a kind. My focus will be to keep everything relative — to keep topics meaningful and information easy to read and follow. We want it to be a fun, happy and exciting place for people to come back to time after time."

Magnificent Gardens, Waterfalls, Blooming Flowers... '91 Home & Garden Show

Dreaming about spring flowers, fresh vegetables, and outdoor living? Well then, it's time to escape and let your dreams come true at the '91 Builders Home & Garden Show, your five-day "Getaway To Spring." February 27-March 3 at the Convention Center. Sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Greater St. Louis, this year's show is bursting with ideas for your home and garden and promises to wet your appetite for outdoor cooking, dining, gardening, and much more. Show visitors will see 120 booths representing almost 400 companies in 200,000 square feet of exhibit space — the largest show ever!

Besides being one of St. Louis' first signs of spring, the show will include many first-time feature areas. First, there's the Affordable Dream Home, which will be the focal point in the feature garden as show visitors enter the main exhibit hall. This home will be designed and built by Custom Concepts Design & Build, and completely landscaped by Prestigious Landscaping & Patio Co. Inc. and Gilbert's Perennial Farms, in a 4,000 square foot area. The complete home on a lakeview lot at Anthony's Mill Resort will be auctioned three weeks following the show and all proceeds going to Habitat for Humanity. Show visitors will be able to walk through the house, complete with skylights, a whirlpool bath, custom cabinetry, vaulted ceilings, and much more so they will be ready to place their bids at March 22 when the Anthony's Mill Resort, KMOX-TV Channel 4 is a sponsor for the area at the show as well as the auction, which will begin at 1 p.m. at Anthony's Mill Resort. Mercantile Bank will be providing the financing with no origination fee, appraisal for the house, and prequalification for interested buyers.

All gardeners will want to visit the Green Thumb Theater area, which will include various lawn and garden programs throughout the five-day show. The area, sponsored by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, will feature Bob Thomson, host of the PBS-TV program "The Victory Garden." Thomson will have presentations on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, February 27-March 1. See other lawn and garden experts throughout the five days including John Whelan, Horticulturist, University Missouri Extension Service, Doug Gilbert, Gilbert's Perennial Farms, and other master gardeners from the Missouri Botanical Garden. And on Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. show visitors can see a "Pool & Patio Fashion Show." The show will include mens, womens, and childrens fashions, and is sponsored by St. Louis Home Magazine and Famous Barr. Laclede Gas will bring the art and aroma of outdoor cooking and show with live outdoor cooking demonstrations entitled "From the Garden to the Grill." All of this will take place on stage with the backdrop being a live vegetable garden with vegetables on the vine ready for harvest, sponsored by Advance Seed Company, a subsidiary of Ferry-Morse Seed Company.

Adjacent to this area will be over 200 booths in the Lawn & Patio Showcase. Visitors will find everything from pools, patios, and spas to lawn equipment, gazebos, and patio enclosures. See hundreds of ideas to make your outdoor living unique and talk to the experts to create your own custom designs for home patios.

The Sixth Annual FTD Florist's feature will highlight the entrance to the main exhibit hall. This year's theme is "Let's Have A Party" and will include over 40 area FTD florists. Everything from birthdays, weddings, and bar mitzvahs will be featured with the latest, and the latest in floral design. In addition, designers will be giving continuous demonstrations throughout the show, creating many one-of-a-kind arrangements and giving them to show visitors. In addition, visitors will be able to make donations to the Children's Miracle Network of Greater St. Louis in return for fresh cut flowers and design pieces. This year FTD will hold their "America's Cup Competition" on Thursday, February 28, in the lobby. Many area florists will create arrangements in different given categories to be judged at the show.

The latest in appliances, fixtures, custom cabinetry, and home furnishings will be featured in the Kitchen & Bath Showcase. The latest in appliances, fixtures, custom cabinetry, and home furnishings will be featured in the Kitchen & Bath Showcase. American Log Homes will be building a 400 square foot log home completely furnished and decorated. This home will be completely landscaped by Future Rock Landscaping Inc., Krupp Materials, and Meramec Landscaping. The setting will be 20' tall white pine trees, mulch walkways surrounding the house, blooming flowers, waterfalls, and a deck with a spa off the back of the house. The other unique home, a brand new national display, will be the Smart House. This is the ultimate electronic system for total integrated home automation. The system brings a new level of comfort, convenience, and energy savings into the home environment. At the show, visitors will be able to touch and test the Smart House system themselves.

SMART HOUSE

The Smart Revolution

Imagine being able to call home to adjust the room temperature or check the security status of your home. This just might not be so far-fetched. Home buyers of the '90s may choose a new home for its "intelligence" rather than just plain good looks.

The '91 Home & Garden show will feature a brand new national display of the "Smart House," the first whole-house energy and communications distribution system that enables integrated home automation. The system's revolutionary new wiring, semi-rigid gas piping and built-in electronic intelligence brings new homes into the electronic age and puts easy-to-use, centralized home management at the homeowner's fingertips. Smart House enables convenient and centralized control of all automated features in the home including security, safety, energy management, entertainment, lighting control and communications. The SMART Playroom will be the first opportunity to actually try-out the system. The four rooms of the SMART Playroom create an interactive display intended to show the wide array of benefits that Smart House can provide. Visitors will be able to experience first-hand control of many security, safety, lighting, communication, energy management and entertainment features; for example, they can open or close the draper electronically, assign light switches to control various light fixtures.

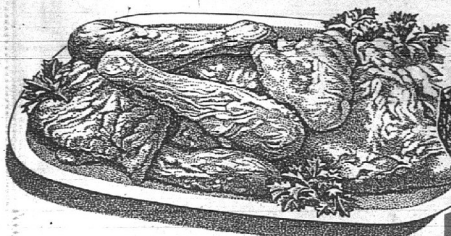

Visitors will also see the extraordinary capabilities of the touch-tone telephone in the SMART HOUSE system. In real-life facilities will not only be able to control functions by phone literally, but they will also be able to control them by calling home to adjust room temperature or check the security status of your home. Other features of the SMART Playroom will include a remote control, a keypad and a PC.

Even though the SMART Playroom will provide only a glimpse of the vast number of features and benefits the SMART HOUSE system will enable, show goers will see how simple and enjoyable the SMART HOUSE living can be and the new level of comfort, convenience, and energy savings that can be brought into the home environment.

Jazz up 'other white meat' with tender, lovin' cooking

By Barb Gray
Certified home economist

People today are rediscovering pork. To their delight, they are learning that today's pork is leaner with less fat, more nutritious and more in tune with their lifestyles than they ever dreamed possible only 20 short years ago.

Speaking of dreams, combine a nice pork cut with a delicious recipe and the quick-cooking appliance of the microwave oven. That is a dream come true.

One of the fallacies of cooking pork has been that the more cooking it receives, the better it will be. The pork industry has gone to great lengths to eliminate potential health hazards in the production of fresh pork, so pork can be cooked safely to only 160°. Its leanness has given it the nickname of the "other white meat" because some cuts are similar in fat to poultry.

Tender, juicy and flavorful dishes can be expected when cooking pork in a microwave oven. It is estimated that about 75 percent of American households now own a microwave oven, so take the plunge to cook pork in it.

The key to cooking pork roasts, chops, ribs and other cuts is to cook them in a closed container, such as a loosely sealed cooking bag or a covered microwave-safe container, to produce a vaporous atmosphere. Research has shown that by using these methods, microwave pork is not only tender, wholesome and juicy, but it is energy efficient and saves the cook's time.

Jazz up the meal by using pork tenderloin prepared Szechuan-style in a microwave. Pork tenderloin has minimal fat when it is bought, so time is saved when getting it ready to cook. One serving has only 219 calories and 9 grams fat.

This is a fast, easy and tasty dish that takes only 10 minutes to prepare and 10 minutes to cook.

Szechuan

Pork Tenderloin

1/2 lb. pork tenderloin, sliced 1/4 inch thick
1 1/2 tbsp. reduced-sodium soy sauce
1 tsp. steak sauce
1 clove garlic, minced
1 tbsp. minced fresh onion

Pinch crushed red pepper
1 cup cauliflower
1/2 medium red or green bell pepper, cut in 1 inch squares
1 tbsp. coarsely chopped dry-roasted peanuts
Hot cooked rice

Stir together pork slices, soy sauce, steak sauce, garlic, onion and red pepper in microwave-safe 1-quart casserole. Marinate 10 to 15 minutes at room temperature. Refrigerate, if mixture needs to stand longer.

Microwave pork tenderloin mixture, covered with waxed paper, on medium (50 percent) power 4 to 5 minutes, stirring well after each 3 minutes.

Stir in cauliflower and pepper squares. Cook, covered with waxed paper, on high 2 to 3 minutes until vegetables are tender-crisp. Top with peanuts. Serve with rice.

Makes 2 servings.

Spring into some grill work at this week's home show

It is time to put the seed catalogs aside and let spring show what it holds in store at the 1991 Builders Home and Garden Show. Laclede Gas home economists will present a series of cooking demonstrations "From the Garden to the Gas Grill" that will make those favorite vegetables come to life.

The demonstrations will be on four brands of American-made gas grills that are as modern as a slice of purple potato. A winner wheel, a grill with a reversible side shelf, and others with marble shelves or movable carts will be previewed.

Vegetables will be prepared three ways on the gas grills—directly on the grid, steamed and rotisserie—to accompany new entrées.

Parsleyed Potatoes are a favorite that matches Grilled Swordfish, Tarragon, Steaks Supreme, meaty ribeye steaks, will be grilled and smothered in a delicious, quick and easy basting sauce.

A colorful combination of broccoli and carrots with a taste of dill will be topped with French-fried onion rings. Dilly Vegetable Medley will be prepared in a foil package for steaming on the grill.

Irresistible aroma will come from Gingered Pork Loin, marinated in a tangy ginger marinade and rotisserie on a spit. Don't leave out dessert. It will be angel food cake toasted on the grill and topped with ice cream and drizzled with hot fudge topping, truly an Angel Delight.

This is the 11th year the Laclede Gas home economists have participated at the home and garden show, which runs today through Sunday (Feb. 27 to March 3). The cooking demonstrations will be at 6:30 p.m. today (Wednesday), 1:30 p.m. Thursday, 6:30 p.m. Friday, 1:30 p.m. Saturday and 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

"The Laclede Gas Cookin'-Candy Cook Book," a reprinted cookbook of 20 years ago still economically priced at $3 each, will be available at the shows.

Here is a sample of the spring menu.

Dilly Vegetable Medley

Heavy-duty aluminum foil
1 pkg. (16 oz.) frozen broccoli cuts, thawed
1 pkg. (16 oz.) frozen sliced carrots, thawed
2 tbsp. oil
2 tsp. butter or margarine
1 can (2.8 oz.) French-fried onion rings

Preheat gas grill on high flame 10 minutes.

On 15-by-14-inch piece of heavy-duty aluminum foil, arrange broccoli and carrots. Sprinkle with oil. Dot with butter. Close foil tightly.

Place package on grill. Reduce flame to medium. Grill, turning package occasionally, 20 to 30 minutes until vegetables are tender. Sprinkle with onion rings before serving.

Makes 8 to 12 servings.

Note: If using fresh vegetables, cook 10 to 15 minutes longer.

Recipes

Fresh Carrot Puff

1 lb. carrots, peeled, quartered
2 tbsp. milk
1 egg, beaten
1 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. sugar
Pinch cloves
Pinch pepper
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
1/2 cup finely chopped fresh onion
2 tbsp. chopped fresh parsley

In covered medium saucepan, cook carrots in boiling water 20 minutes or until tender. Drain. Place carrots in small mixing bowl. Beat with electric mixer until smooth. Beat in milk, egg, salt, sugar, cloves and pepper. Melt butter in same saucepan. Add onion and parsley. Cook until onion is tender. Stir into carrot mixture.

Turn into greased 1-quart casserole. Bake in 350° oven 30 minutes or until set.

Makes 4 servings.

Laredo Chili

1/2 lb. ground beef
1/2 lb. ground pork
1 can (20 to 26 oz.) chili beans
1 tsp. chili powder
Shredded Monterey Jack cheese
Sliced green onion

Frozen food wins confidence; Variety Club secures support

It is a win-win situation. Everybody likes to eat. March is National Frozen Food Month. Middendorf Meat/Quality Foods is promoting frozen foods, with proceeds to benefit the Variety Club of St. Louis. Everybody gets a piece of the pie.

Middendorf, who has won two consecutive Silver Penguin Awards from the National Frozen Food Association for marketing excellence, is running the promotion with more than 25 of its food service customers through March 29. Its ambitious goal of $12,000 for Variety Club is almost twice the amount it raised last year.

Here are some of the special events featured:

•At the Frozen Food Festival today (Feb. 27) at Andre's Banquet Center, Middendorf will donate money on every case of frozen food sold at the show.

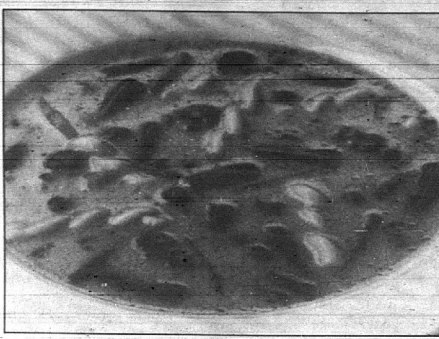

•Stokes Restaurant, 392 St. Ferdinand, Florissant, will donate a portion of its Sunday brunch profits March 3. Balloons will be given away and a Rosie Hags doll, the official doll of the International Variety Club, will be offered.

•First National Drink, Olive and Woods Mill Road, Creve Coeur, will donate money from every child's plate sold during March.

•Mel's Sports Bar and Grill, 9580 Page, will feature specials each week during March with a donation to the Variety Club. A pool tournament also will benefit the club.

•Lukasek Catering of Affton will donate money from sale of its crab rangoon, which is available in some retail stores.

Frozen foods started their long life in America's kitchens with Clarence Birdseye's mastering the vegetable freezing process in 1929. From poly bags to wax cartons and individual servings, they are a mainstay for today's cook who may or may not know the way around a kitchen.

They are frozen with freshness in mind. To keep them in peak condition, they should be taken home immediately after shopping and put in the home freezer right away. They stay freshest at 0°F up to six months. Use frozen vegetables stored at 15°, more commonly the temperature in combination refrigerator-freezers, within four weeks.

Easy Vegetable Cheese Soup, which relies heavily on frozen foods, is a breeze to prepare. It was a finalist cooked by Carol Franzetta of Ft. Wayne, Ind., at the 24th Pillsbury Bake-Off Contest last year.

Easy Vegetable Cheese Soup

- 2 cans (14 1/2 oz.) chicken broth
- 1 pkg. (16 oz.) frozen pasta and vegetable combination (Pasta Accents Garden Herb combination suggested)
- 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen cut broccoli in cheese sauce
- 1 cup frozen cut green beans
- 1/2 cup process cheese spread

In large saucepan over medium heat, bring chicken broth to boil. Stir in frozen pasta mixture, broccoli and green beans. Return to boil. Reduce heat to low. Simmer 7 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally, until vegetables are tender-crisp. Remove from heat. Add cheese spread. Stir until cheese is melted. Makes seven 1-cup servings.

Make lemon meringue pie while the sun shines

Winter days are the best time to bake lemon meringue pie in the Midwest, because humid weather causes lower volume and "weeping." Add the sugar before the egg whites are stiff and beat until the sugar is dissolved thoroughly.

Spread the meringue on a hot filling and seal it to the crust all around the edge of the pastry before placing it in the oven. This helps cook the bottom half of the meringue. Bake meringue 10 minutes; Cool away from draft.

Madison Senior Citizens host Valentine's party

The Madison Seniors hosted a Valentine's Day party Feb. 14 catered by Lee's Chicken. Sixty-nine members and two guests, Emily Ashford and Mavis Carter, attended. Bingo was played and then the group crowned the king and queen of hearts, George Gocheff and Maryann Ropac.

The king and queen received a gift from the club given to them by Treasurer Genevieve McClure. The event was chaired by Mildred Shifter and the entertainment committee. Two gifts were donated by Lahey-Sedlack Funeral Home of Madison.

Evening Circle gathers at First Presbyterian Church

The Evening Circle of First Presbyterian Church met Feb. 19 in the parlor of the church. Vee Throne was hostess for the evening. Throne opened the meeting with a prayer followed by a reading of the Presbyterian Women's newsletter.

Members were reminded of the Cherry Pie Festival, Melodrama, and Talent Show to be held in the fellowship hall of the church at 6:30 p.m. today (Sunday). Hosting the event will be "The Guppies," a youth group of the local area Presbyterian churches. The Mission Yearbook of Prayer was read by Barbara Landis. The Fellowship of the Least Coin, "Doers of the Word" written by Alice Jean Finley, was given by Gladys Fuhrman. Fuhrman also presented the evening's lesson, "Empowered to Proclaim Salvation for All." Following a discussion, the lesson closed with prayer led by a meditation by Mary Freedlund.

Community calendar

Our event calendar also includes entries for community groups and their formal meeting days. Such groups meet on the first Monday of the month, the first Tuesday of the month, etc. Readers are encouraged to call these groups if holidays or other days pose uncertainty. Corrections, additions and deletions of information are encouraged and new entries may be added at anytime by calling the newsroom at 876-2000. This calendar runs in every Wednesday's Journal.

The unit voted $506 to purchase 13 historical flags, poles and eagles. The flags, to be used throughout the state, depict the "talking flag," which gives the history of the flag.

Other donations were $100 to the Kiwanis Club toward the purchase of American flags for the streets of Granite City; $200 for cemetery flags to the United Veterans Council; $50 to the Leukemia Fund; $200 to the DAV Department of Illinois Service

Foundation for veterans transportation; $100 to each of the VA hospitals and Illinois veterans' homes; $200 for a veterans' 6-month-old daughter in need of heart surgery; $100 for a Valentine's Day party for OATH for young adult special education; $200 to James S. McDonnell USO at Lambert Airport; $100 for DARE; $50 American Heart Association as a memorial; and Valentine's Day treats for children of a service man serving in Desert Storm.

The unit will assist DAV Chapter 53 to host the Egyptian District meeting in Granite City on April 21.

Ladies club to hold 'baby shower' in March

Rena Hill, president of the Holy Family Ladies Club, opened the Feb. 6 meeting and Bev Camper led the prayer. The minutes were read by the secretary, Judy Bucatch, and Donna Laws presented the treasurer's report.

The reception hosted by the club to thank Margaret Crawshaw for her many years of music service to the parish went very well. Laws reported. About 150 people stopped by to greet the honoree.

Ceil Cruise advised a nursing home party will be held April 29 and punch and cakes are needed for the event.

Madeleine Villotti will head the card committee and Mary Zellerman will lead the welcoming committee.

Hill announced the March meeting will be a "baby shower" to assist Catholic Charities with its needs. Gifts should not be wrapped.

It was mentioned the "Quilt of the Month" ticket sales are going very well and there is still one month to sell. The first drawing on these tickets will be at the March 6 meeting.

The month's quilt winner was Marge Pennell and Ginny Connelly won an attendance prize. Desserts were provided by Judy Bucatch, Betty Bucatch and Nancy Ulahey.

U of I program brings music to school

Children at Niedringhaus School became instant actors during an assembly at the school recently.

"Opera Look-In," a new outreach program of the University of Illinois School of Music, was presented to the intermediate grade students.

The two-part music appreciation program, especially designed for young audiences, featured a performance section and a question-and-answer period.

The program was the culmination of a unit of study by the children in their general music class with Patricia L. Dineff, music teacher at the school.

Introduced by Principal Ellen Voyles, the troupe presented seven opera arias, duets and trios. Three Niedringhaus School students surprised all with their on-stage acting talent by assisting in two of the arias. Travis Revelle, a fifth-grader, was the "customer" of "The Barber of Seville"; Allyson McDowell and Madrigal Vorce, both fourth-graders, were charging bulls in

"Toreador Song" from "Carmen."

The Theatrical Movers Committee consisting of Karen McClelland, Nick Steele, Rob Turk and Jason Warren, all sixth-graders, helped set up scenery and properties for the presentation. Karen McClelland also created the welcoming banner for the troupe.

The performers were: Dawn Kellogg, narrator; Deborah Van Engen, soprano; Daniel Schutz, tenor; Tracy Muchesko, baritone; Thomas Schleis, pianist-accompanist; Bruce Redington, technician and manager; and Nicholas DiVirgilio, director of the program.

DiVirgilio, professor of voice at University of Illinois, has an extensive background in opera, including singing at the Metropolitan Opera, New York City Opera, and the San Francisco Opera in the United States, as well as in Europe.

He also has directed opera and served as consultant to the National Endowment for the Arts.

CHARGING BULLS fourth-graders Allyson McDowell and Madrigal Vorce, in the front row, play their parts as Deborah Van Engen, Daniel Schutz and Tracy Muchesko from the University of Illinois School of Music, back row, perform the "Toreador Song" from the opera "Carmen."

Toddler fashions show true colors

By Jim Haverstick
Staff writer

American patriotism shows through even in children's fashions. Red, white and blue are kids' colors for spring, and these colors for the spring line were chosen months before the war in the Persian Gulf broke out, said Cindy Koishor, manager of Sweet Beginnings and Macho Makers, children's clothing store in Fairview Heights. Koishor acted as the emcee of the "Cherub Revue" children's fashion show Thursday at The Christian Women's Club's February brunch at the Ramada Inn in Fairview Heights. Ten little tykes, dressed in spring fashions, hammed it up for the crowd in a tea-room style fashion show. All of the models were under the age of 2. The combination of red, white and blue in children's clothing is being used in a variety of ways. Multi-colored stripes are popular, as are red bow ties and sashes, blue and white socks and bold red, white and blue prints.

Solid red, white or blue separates and coordinates also are popular. The nautical look is big for both boys and girls, Koishor said, and that does not mean just sailor suits. The nautical look is able to incorporate both the patriotic color scheme and an armed forces motif. Just plain old navy blue is a popular color, she said. Sailor hats are big for both boys and girls as are the draping sailor collars on shirts and dresses.

Traditional buttons, bows and ruffles are always popular for girls, she said. But traditional styles are no longer the norm for boys. "Boys fashions have changed drastically over the past few years," Koishor said. "People think that boys have to look basic and that is just not true." Little boys can now wear bold or pastel colors, which was taboo in the past, she added. Also, they can use more accessories than they have in the past such as bow ties, suspenders and colored socks. "Boys can be cute and that is what fashion is all about — it is all about making a statement," Koishor said.

Also at the March, soprano Carol Behrman performed lullabies of love for the "cherub revue." The Christian Women's Club in an international, non-denominational organization open to any women, said Kristine Mueller of Belleville, president of the metro-east chapter of the organization. The group meets once a month.

Richard Gere's films give boost to co-stars

Piano auditions set

Keyboard Amateur Musicians' Association will hold piano evaluative auditions April 27 at Washington University.

The auditions, for primary to advanced students, provide an opportunity for young musicians to be recognized. The filing deadline is April 1 by calling (314) 968-3545.

The enigmatic Richard Gere has managed to star in two top-grossing love stories that cleared the $100 million mark, yet in both cases his leading ladies made off with most of the credit. In "An Officer and a Gentleman" (1982, Paramount, $14.95), it was Debra Winger who grabbed an Oscar nomination as the factory worker hoping to marry a naval officer (Gere) in the sexually frank romance.

And in last year's "Pretty Woman" (1990, Touchstone, $19.95), you'd think co-star Julia Roberts appeared in a one-woman show. That's how few critics applauded Gere's yeoman work as a rich dreamboat.

It's notable that both pictures end with Gere showing up and whisking the women away from a life of poverty. Talk about your prince charming.

The actor from Syracuse, N.Y., started his film career as an angry young man in "Looking for Mr. Goodbar" (1977, Paramount, $39.95), director Richard Brooks' film that would be the expose of the late '70s, pre-AIDS singles scene. Gere plays one of the Diane Keaton character's pick-ups.

In Robert Mulligan's "Blood Brothers" (1978, Warner, $39.98), Gere is born into a family of Italian-American construction workers in New York but wants to break away from the macho traditions of his father and uncle (Tony Lo Bianco and Paul Sorvino).

By Ian MacBryde
Correspondent

All the numbers are not in yet, but it appears the war in the Persian Gulf has created an increase in the number of people listening to KMOX-AM (1120).

The station's audience was up by 26 percent in the December-to-January period, compared with the numbers for November and December. The Birch Report, which compiled the numbers, measures audiences in overlapping two-month increments. The increase was measured among listeners ages 25 to 34 who responded to a telephone survey.

The survey would seem to confirm reports from a meeting of management people of major AM stations across the country, which indicate that stations with all-news and talk formats are thriving.

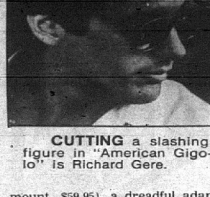

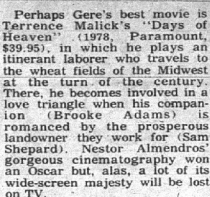

My first indication of the increase came from a KMOX advertiser who said listener response to the company's commercials had increased dramatically since the war began.

Incidentally, KMOX remains at the top of the heap in audience share according to an Inside Radio survey which found that the station was tied for first place among stations in the largest 50 markets. That makes the CBS-owned station one of the most successful in the country.

With that in mind, it's a shame KMOX has eliminated its broadcasts from Moscow. You may recall that the station over the last year periodically ran "people-to-people" broadcasts which featured folks in the Soviet capital and in St. Louis asking one another questions. The format was a bit cumbersome because of the need for translators, but it represented a real effort at communication in a changing world.

A station spokeswoman said the broadcasts were canceled because Monsanto, which had underwritten some of the costs of the program, no longer was willing to pick up the tab.

Radio is everywhere. I was shocked when I asked a woman recently what radio station she listened to in the car. "I don't have a radio in the car," she said. She went on to

Perhaps Gere's best movie is Terrence Malick's "Days of Heaven" (1978, Paramount, $39.95), in which he plays an itinerant laborer who travels to the wheat fields of the Midwest at the turn of the century. There, he becomes involved in a love triangle when his companion (Brooke Adams) is romanced by the prosperous landowner they work for (Sam Shepard). Nestor Almendros' gorgeous cinematography won an Oscar but, alas, a lot of its wide-screen majesty will be lost on TV.

It was "American Gigolo" (1980, Paramount, $59.95) that established Gere's reputation as an actor who specializes in taking his clothes off. Originally planned as a vehicle for John Travolta, "Gigolo" gives Gere one monologue in the nude, as well as scenes of him lifting weights and wearing his Giorgio Armani wardrobe. The fact that the movie makes little sense hardly seems to matter.

For the next few years, it seemed Gere was always naked, whether the part called for it or not. In the otherwise forgettable "Beyond the Limit" (1983, Paramount, $39.95), a dreadful adaptation of Graham Greene's "The Honorary Consul," Gere answers the phone from the shower, without bothering to wrap a towel around himself.

There's another shower scene in "Breathless" (1983, Vestron, $29.98), director Jim McBride's misguided but not unwatchable update of the Jean-Luc Goddard classic re-located from Paris to Los Angeles.

The actor is once again in the altogether in his love scenes with Diane Lane in Francis Ford Coppola's lavish musical/gangster film "The Cotton Club" (1984, Embassy Home Entertainment, $14.98). Even in the Biblical epic "King David" (1985, Paramount, $79.95), Gere runs around in a sort of adult diaper as he dances in religious ecstasy.

Along with "Pretty Woman," the actor reclaimed his box-office prowess last year with "Internal Affairs" (1990, Paramount, $34.95), in which he plays a corrupt police officer trying to avoid an honest one (Andy Garcia) investigating police practices. Although he plays yet another stud woman can't resist, Gere stays dressed throughout the entire picture.

Best Bet: "Flatliners" (1990, RCA/Columbia, $34.95) for letterbox format; Julia Roberts, Kiefer Sutherland, Kevin Bacon and William Baldwin play medical students who experiment with life after death in this visually slick drama from director Joel Schumacher.

A Free Soul" (1991, MGM/UA, $29.98): Compare this year's Best Actor Oscar nominees to Lionel Barrymore's winning performance as a lawyer who defends the ex-fiance (Leslie Howard) of his "free-spirited" daughter (Norma Shearer) after he shoots her rough boy friend (Clark Gable), in the role that made him a sex symbol.

"Sharkey" Powell's 30 Minute Workout" (1991, Cigone Enterprises, $24.95, 800-877-BFTD): An alternative workout video by the founder of the Women at Large Exercise Salon franchise, specifi-

without one. Radio, as much as anything else, reflects our society quite well. If you don't think so, listen to it more closely.

You may be disappointed. You will occasionally be bored, offended, uplifted and enraged.

Persian War reports extending KMOX's lead say she had deliberately not ordered a radio when she bought the vehicle. "Radio, of course, is everywhere — except in her car. There is a radio in my kitchen, in my family room, in every
